The Department of Sociology & Anthropology (SOAN) is seeking applications for a tenure-track position at the Assistant Professor level, commencing July 1, 2019.

The Description

Applicants should possess a PhD in Anthropology or Sociology or be near completion. The Department invites applications from candidates whose research focuses on one of the following areas: 1) Work, economies, and ecologies; 2) Kinship, family, and social reproduction; 3) Inequality, structural violence, and the law. We are particularly interested in candidates whose work centres on social justice and the experiences of marginalized and oppressed groups (including Indigenous peoples, people of African descent, queer and transgender people, and people with disabilities).

Workload for the position includes research, teaching, and collegial service. The successful candidate will be expected to develop an externally-funded program of research that incorporates the training of undergraduate students. Experience in teaching undergraduate courses at a variety of levels is an asset.

Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, teaching dossier (including a statement of teaching philosophy and interests), a statement of current and future research interests, and contact information for three references. The department will begin considering applications on February 4, 2019. The position will remain open until filled.

Salary and benefits are in accordance with the Collective Agreement with the Mount Saint Vincent University Faculty Association. This position is subject to final budgetary approval.
