The Department is looking for candidates with a PhD in Sociology or related discipline. Evidence of an actively developing research program with an emphasis on Technology and Social Change is required. The candidate is expected to propose an innovative program of high-quality research that will attract external funding and excellent, well qualified, and diverse graduate students. The ideal candidate's program of research will examine the socio-cultural impact of autonomous technologies (derived from data science, artificial intelligence, machine learning, or robotics) for the social organization of domestic life, education, health, or industrial processes and their regulatory or policy implications. A successful record of Tri-Agency funding is required. The ability and desire to partner with faculty in closely related fields is required.

Duties include research, teaching at the undergraduate and graduate level, service to the unit, and the supervision of graduate students. Experience developing an array of traditional and on-line courses for a diverse student body is required. The successful candidate will have a reduced teaching load during the term of the CRC. Applicants whose research aligns with the strategic plan of the Department, by contributing to the Department's thematic area of Knowledge, Education, and Digital Culture as an interdisciplinary field of study and by contributing to high-quality undergraduate and graduate student training in social theories or methodologies, would be preferred.

The University of Waterloo is committed to providing the candidate with the support required to successfully secure the CRC.

The successful candidate will have obtained a PhD or equivalent within ten years of their nomination to the CRC position and will be an outstanding emerging scholar with a demonstrated potential to achieve a significant international reputation in the next five to ten years. The University of Waterloo understands the impact that legitimate career interruptions (e.g. parental leave, leave due to illness) can have on a candidate's record of research achievement and encourages potential candidates to explain in their application the impact this may have on their record; this information will be taken into careful consideration during the assessment process. Please consult the CRC website, https://www.chairs-chaire.gc.ca/, and the Office of Research, https://uwaterloo.ca/research/about-research/canada-research-chair-public-accountability/waterloos-canada-research-chairs, for full program information, including further details on eligibility criteria.
