

The Canadian Network of Durkheimian Studies/ Réseau canadien d'études durkheimienne (CNDS/RCED) Annual Sessions 2024

A Research Cluster of the Canadian Sociological Association/
Société canadienne de sociologie (CSA/SCS)

McGill University, Montreal, June 17-21, 2024

The Canadian Network of Durkheimian Studies/Réseau canadien d'études durkheimienne (CNDS/RCED) Research Cluster, in conjunction with the Social Theory Research Cluster of the CSA, is accepting abstracts in either English, ou en Français, for presentations at the CSA-SCS Annual Meetings, to be held in June 2024 online and in person at McGill University in Montreal, Quebec, Canada. The the call for abstracts and useful links are just below.

Durkheimian Studies - Open Session: Call for Abstracts, due January 29, 2024

In recent decades, Durkheimian sociology and social theory have sparked new debates and controversies while informing research on a wide range of contemporary social phenomena and events. Canadian sociologists have contributed to this renewal in important ways. The Durkheim Research Cluster of the CSA/SCS welcomes a wide variety of submissions including papers involving substantive studies (e.g., religion, cultural analysis, studies of social pathology, suicide), critical perspectives (e.g., decolonizing sociology), theoretical research, creative syntheses such as found in Fields and Fields work on Durkheim and Du Bois in Racecraft, and historical-contextual work. Our in-person proceedings will be held at McGill University, Montreal, Monday, June 17 through Friday, June 21, 2024. The Canadian Network of Durkheimian Studies encourages submissions reflecting the 2024 Congress theme of "Challenging Hate: Sustaining Shared Futures." Presenters will typically have 15-20 minutes of speaking time, followed by open discussion.

Instructions etc. on submitting an abstract can be found here:

<https://www.csa-scs.ca/call-for-abstracts>

Congress 2024 information can be found here:

<https://www.federationhss.ca/en/congress2024>

Abstracts are due on Monday, January 29, 2024.